Mrs. John Cater left at noon Thursday for South Bend, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Wolf and son Maudin leave to-day to spend some time in Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. Fulghum and family have gone to Macon, Ga., to spend several weeks and later will visit their old home in Valosta before returning. Miss Lurleyne will not return but enter Wesleyan College.

Mr. Wilson Scott, the very efficient chief clerk at the freight office, has resigned his position and left Thursday noon for his old home in Louisville, Ky., to the regret of the office force.

Mr. Leo Kuester has returned from his summer vacation spent at Albion, Tenn., and other points in Tennessee.

Magnolia Temple No. 4, Rathbone Sisters, held a very interesting meeting Wednesday afternoon, and the installation of one candidate was an attractive feature.

The Atlanta News announces the presence in that city of Mr. and Mrs. Ausley of Pensacola.

THE ROBERTS-SANDUSKY A PRETTY AUTUMN WEDDING. One of the prettiest early autumn weddings was that of Mr. John Penington Sandusky and Miss Nellie Kathryn Roberts, which took place

Thursday, September 7, 1905, at the residence of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Roberts, No. 111 East Gregory. No cards were issued—only the near relatives of the bride being present.

The bride was prettily gowned in a dainty white dress and carried an exquisite bouquet of brides roses and ferns.

They were attended by her young sister Miss Marguerite Roberts, who was also gowned in white with pink ribbon, carrying a shower bouquet of bridesmaid roses—and Mr. Cochran Sandusky, brother of the groom.

The parlor, hall and dining room were prettily decorated in ferns and cut flowers, the color scheme being yellow and green.

The table was adorned with exquisite Mexican drawn work with yellow ribbon and smilax suspended from the chandelier to the four corners of the table. In the center was a cut glass punch bowl filled with a delicious punch and resting in a bank of golden-glow asters and ferns.

The refreshments consisted of a salad course, ices and cake.

They received some very handsome presents of cut glass, linen and silver. Mr. and Mrs. Sandusky will be at home to their friends at Hotel South-ern.

MISS RUBY WADE HAS PASSED AWAY.

The many friends of Miss Ruby Wade will be grieved to learn that she died at her home in Carrollville, Ala., on Tuesday, after a protracted illness.

Miss Wade has frequently visited in Pensacola the guest of her cousin Miss Julia Lee, her last visit being last spring and was highly regarded by all who knew her.

THE MONEY THAT DIDN'T BELONG TO HIM.

The quiet of Franklin street was broken in upon one day last summer by a raft of noisy boys, who, finding a little stretch of shade thrown by Mr. Foster's tall, new house, took advantage of it for their game.

I don't know just what the game was, but it kicked up a great deal of dust, and a great deal of noise, and seemed to be very exciting. One thing that I could not help seeing from my window disquieted me. It was that pennies were passing from one pocket to another. I didn't like the looks of that.

Presently, a rather grim-looking old fellow, with a gray mustache, and a patch over one eye, came along, walking stiffly on a wooden leg. He stopped long enough to see what the boys were doing and then I heard him call out in a resonant voice, "George Maxwell!"

"Sir," answered a young voice, promptly, and a handsome, straight little fellow stepped out from the crowd.

"There's a little story I've been wanting to tell you for a great while, and I think this a good chance."

A look passed among the boys, which seemed to say that they didn't agree with him about this being a good chance, but he took advantage of their silence to begin his story:

"When we all surrendered at Appomattox," began the Confederate, and a friend of mine had several hundred dollars in gold, belonging to the Confederate government, which had been put into his hands to buy ordnance stores abroad.

"What am I going to do with the gold?" said he.

"Why, Colonel," said I, "come with me; we'll look up what's left of the Confederate government, and turn it in."

"But almost before we had gotten out of Virginia, Davis had been captured, and the Confederate government was a thing of the past."

"Now what am I going to do with this gold?" said the Colonel.

"Well, Colonel," said I, "you are as much the Confederate government as anybody else now; and I advise you to keep the money and use it in getting it somewhere."

"He didn't seem to like this idea; said he wasn't in the habit of using money that didn't belong to him. But everybody he consulted gave him the same advice; and so after a while he gave it to two friends of his, young soldiers who had come out of the war without a cent, and they set up in business in a small way.

"We'll make you partner in the concern, Colonel," they said, and so they used his name, though he never touched a cent of the money, after he turned over to them that Confederate gold. They failed, poor fellows, and lost all the money, and got in debt besides.

"Meantime, the Colonel was earning his living by his wits, and going right on to success. I don't mean that he was getting rich, but he was serving his country and her broken fortunes and her discouraged people, and was everywhere relied upon as a man of men."

"Just before he married the woman he had been waiting for, I saw him and congratulated him upon his good fortune. 'That Confederate gold gave you the first start, didn't it, Colonel?' said I.

"Then he told me what had happened to it. 'But you know, Major,' said he, 'I've never felt right about that money; it wasn't mine to give away, nor to lose; and I've made up my mind to take it out of my own pocket and give it to some state institution.'

"Oh, come, now," said I, jeeringly; "the day for Don Quixotes is past."

"I didn't see this old comrade again until a few months before his death. Yes, boys,"—the old soldier's voice grew husky—"he's gone into camp with old Stonewall and 'Mars Bob,' and the rest. 'Well, Colonel,' said I, 'I hope you didn't steal that money from the fine boy I heard you are growing at Patroaks; for I knew he was ready to brag about his baby.'

"I'll tell you a curious thing about that boy, Major," said he.

"Oh, I've no doubt you'll want me to believe some hard yarns on him, said I; he breaks your coils for you, doesn't he? any spends his idle time in studying Sanskrit."

"No," said he; "but I'll tell you what he's made an honest man of his father."

"A mighty tough job, truly," I snarled.

"Well," said the Colonel, "when I came to think about the sort of fair and square man I wanted George to be, that old Confederate gold bothered me. I knew, in my secret soul,

The Journal's Daily Fashion Feature

FETCHING LITTLE SHORT COAT.

Those little short and loose jackets are sure of an enthusiastic reception for the cool days that autumn brings. The model is in white henrietta, since a white coat will harmonize well with almost any color gown, and be likewise in accordance with the popular craze for this spotless coloring that is still a feature of current fashions. The model illustrated shows the coat fashioned with shoulder and under-arm seams only, the latter flaring quite a little from arm-size to hem. Indented scallops are cut in both front and back, and the applied braiding follows indentations, a lace flounce that is backed in beneath showing up daintily. There is a turndown collar, with shallow lapels for a neck finish; and the sleeve is an open design with a turned-up cuff below the elbow. A lace cuff finishes to the hand.

CHIPLEY

Special to The Journal.

Chipley, Sept. 7.—Come days ago it was rumored by some cotton men in Cottontale that there was yellow fever at Chipley and advised the cotton growers not to take their cotton there but bring it to Cottontale. Your correspondent looked the matter up and the only excuse he could find for the rumor was that Capt. A. J. Gay was at the Chipley Hotel, down with a sprained ankle.

The B. C. & St. A. R. R. Co. are at the hat now with plenty of money on deck and contractors are running the bosses to beat the band. Sub-contractors are coming up now for the entire work from the bay to Columbus.

Uncle Dan Bonn, an old railroad contractor of our town, has taken five miles and will put 100 hands with teams and scrapes to work on the 15th inst. Uncle Dan says he never yet took a contract with a company that was not successful. We hope he will push this one through in good shape and quick time.

Mr. Alley, the postmaster, will be back from his month's vacation in the north this week. The assistant postmaster needs him for he is nearly worn out.

It has not rained here for three or four days and we begin to think we are suffering from a drought. However the cotton growers are taking advantage of the fine weather to rush out their cotton.

The Chipley flouring mill is now running full blast.
